Before MURPHY, HEANEY, and BYE, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

Ann Farr had a cabin in Wright County which was destroyed by fire, and in order to rebuild she needed to obtain variances from the zoning ordinance. The Wright County Board of Adjustment denied the variances after a hearing, citing sewer problems, the number of variances sought, lot size, neighbor opposition, and driveway problems. Farr brought this action against Wright County under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, claiming that her constitutional rights to just compensation, due process and equal protection were violated. The district court¹ dismissed the complaint with
